Andover Dentist Elected President of the Massachusetts Dental Society

David S. Samuels, DMD, an Andover periodontist, has been elected President of the Massachusetts Dental Society (MDS).

“A main commitment of the Massachusetts Dental Society is to improve access to dental care in underserved populations of the Commonwealth,” states Dr. Samuels. “With our Call to ACTION, a five year action plan, and great support from our legislators, Massachusetts is truly a national role model.”

A member of MDS since 1987, Dr. Samuels previously was MDS President-Elect and MDS Vice President. He served as Trustee for the Merrimack Valley District Dental Society from 2001 – 2007. Dr. Samuels also volunteers for the Society’s annual conference, Yankee Dental Congress (YDC), serving as the General Chair in 2008.

Dr. Samuels received his bachelor’s degree from Case Western Reserve University in Ohio and his dental degree from Tufts University School of Dental Medicine. Active in his community, Dr. Samuels is a founding member of the Service Club of Andover and is a former member of the Andover School Committee. He maintains a private practice limited to Periodontics, Implant Dentistry, and Oral Medicine at Two Stevens Street in Andover. His second office is located at 207 Upper Main Street in Edgartown.

Dr. Samuels resides in Andover with his wife, Laurie, and three children: Justin, Hillary, and Brad.
